Answers and Solutions

Q:1 The correct answer is option 3 i.e. BACD.

The first part of the sentence is 'B' as it mentions the subject 'Tom' upon whom the entire sentence has been made.

The correct formation of the sentence is 'Tom Sibley was greeted with a "Hello, Fridge" from Joe Root (B)/ when he first joined the England setup last winter. (A)/ But now a more slimline version of the Warwickshire opener heads into his first Test (C)/ on home soil after shedding 12kg during lockdown. (D)'

Hence, option 3 is correct.

Q:2 The correct answer is option 2 i.e. QRSP.

The sentence 'Q' comes first as it introduces the topic of PwD

The sentence 'R' comes second as it is in continuation to the first statement that says PwD is not a positive term.

The third statement is 'S' as it states one of the terms other than PwD.

The last statement is 'P' as it explains the name mentioned in the previous sentence.

Hence, the correct order is QRSP.

Q:3 The correct answer is option 3 i.e. 2,4,3,1.

As part 2 starts with a noun it will act as the starting part of the statement.

Now we need to find out the verb, as part 1 contains 'is' it will come after part 2.

Part 3 makes part 4 complete so it will come after 4.

Part 1 will come at the end of the statement.

Now the final arrangement will be 2431.

Hence, the chosen option is correct.

Q:4 The correct answer is option 2) i.e. ACBD.

The only independent sentence among the given sentences is 'A', hence, it will be the first sentence.

The sentence 'A' talks about 'countries' and the sentence 'C' further talks about the same countries, hence, sentence 'A' will be followed by the sentence 'C'.

So, we have got the combination 'AC' which is given in the option 2) only; hence, it will be the correct answer.

Q:5 The correct answer is option 3 i.e. ADBC.

A. The balloon took off slowly.

This sentence introduces the scene, describing the initial action of the balloon taking off slowly.

D. Within minutes, they were high above the fields.

This sentence provides a temporal reference, indicating that shortly after the slow takeoff, the balloon gained altitude and was high above the fields.

B. The spectators were still waving to them.

This sentence introduces another element to the scene, indicating that there were spectators present and they were waving to the individuals in the balloon. This suggests that the takeoff was a public event or that there were people bidding farewell.

C. But soon, they were out of sight.

This sentence adds a transition, highlighting that despite the spectators waving, the balloon soon went out of sight, possibly ascending rapidly or moving away from the spectators.

Q:6 The correct answer is option 2, i.e. CADB.

Sentence C gives us the introduction of the story where the speaker narrates what happened initially, that is his parents taking him to the sea-side or perhaps a beach.

Sentence A talks about what happened after they reached their destination, which is why it shall follow as the next statement.

Sentence D adds more details to the information presented by the previous statement, that is it mentions what the speaker went on to do with the other children present at the location. Hence, this shall follow at third place.

Sentence B will appear at the end because it provides the next phase of the story. This is evident from the usage of the word 'then' which means afterwards the previous event.

This arrangement provides a sequential order where the various events have been narrated fluently without losing any sense/meaning as the story proceeds.

English

Q:7 The correct answer is option 1, i.e. BCAD.

Sentence B introduces us to the story, which is about a place in Thailand making it to the news as Hollywood arrived there to shoot a movie.

Sentence C talks about certain specifications regarding the movie, such as cast.

Sentence A adds information on what happened due to the occurrence of the movie-shooting.

Since it is a consequence of the events discussed previously it shall follow as the next statement.

Sentence D adds further details to the information given by the previous statement. That is, it specifies the number of visitors after the previous statement mentioned the thing about flocking tourists.

This arrangement follows a sequential manner of narration, where events and information are added throughout the passage without losing fluency nor meaning/sense as the story proceeds ahead.

Q:8 The correct answer is option 2, i.e. BCDA.

Sentence B introduces us to the beginning of the story by giving details about the timeline of the speaker's experience.

Sentence C follows up next because it adds more details to the information provided by the previous statement, that is the mentioning of the specific place during the timeline that was previously mentioned.

Sentence D adds more details about the place where the speaker resided. As it adjoins details to the information provided by the previous statement it shall appear at third place.

Sentence A talks about the condition of the speaker at that particular time and place. This can be treated as a conclusive point as the details shift further towards the person after the previous lines talked about the time and place of the story.

This arrangement follows a sequential order where the details are narrated one after the other without losing any sense/meaning and fluency as the story proceeds ahead.

Q:9 The correct answer is option 4, i.e. ADBC.

Sentence A introduces us to the main context of the passage, which is about flying kites. Hence, this will appear as the first statement.

Sentence D shall follow as the next one because it adjoins more meaning to the previously introduced hobby, denoting it by using the pronoun 'it' and hence continuing the meaning of the information presented by the previous statement.

Sentence B will appear at third place because it adds more information to the aforementioned sport, but with a twist (negative aspect). This change in perspective/detail makes it liable to appear at third place.

Sentence C follows up next as it adjoins details with the fact mentioned by the previous statement, that is the thing about people's requirement to be cautious and skillful since this sport involves certain risks.

This arrangement provides a sequential flow of narration, where the details/information gets added fluently without losing any sense/meaning as the passage/story progresses.

Q:10 The correct answer is option 4, i.e. BDAC.

Sentence B introduces the story and the main event to us, that is regarding a violent storm that had rocked the sea. Hence, this statement will appear as the first one.

Sentence D adds more details by introducing the second character/object in the story, that is the ship. This consecutive addition of information makes this sentence liable to appear at second place.

Sentence A adjoins details to the information presented by the previous statement, which is regarding the ship. So, this one shall appear at third place.

Sentence D concludes with the fate of the inhabitants inside the ship as a result of the ongoing storm. This event can be treated as a conclusion as it provides a consequence of the main event that was presented in the beginning of this story.

This arrangement is correct as it provides a sequential order of narration for all the events and consequences that progress in the story. The sense/meaning doesn't get jumbled and the fluency of narration remains intact.
